researchers reported that cancer patients receiving astragalus extracts had twice the survival rate of those only receiving standard therapies.

of alertness, they can also distort the way a person perceives sound, lights, and other elements critical.